APPENDIX A. METHODOLOGY

Sampling Frame Construction

The sampling frame was designed to encompass the Jewish population across the Greater Miami area including the city of Miami and the surrounding areas. The sampling frame was constructed from two main sets of data sources: (1) combined, de-duplicated membership lists from forty-seven Greater Miami Jewish organizations and (2) an extract from the U.S. Postal Service Computerized Delivery Sequence File (CDSF) to ensure broad coverage of the Jewish community in Greater Miami. Together these sources covered a total of 156 zip codes in the Miami area.

Both sets of data sources were used for the main sample. To be eligible to be sampled for the main sample, a household needed to have a valid mailing address. Main sample households were eligible to be contacted by mail or email for recruitment for the survey. In addition, a supplemental sample contacted by email only was developed using organization list records with only email addresses available and not mailing addresses.

In addition, because of challenges with low response rates during data collection, the study team coordinated directly with Jewish organizations to email an open access link and invitation to participate in the survey to their members. While these responses were not associated with sample members' access codes, the study team used contact information (email and mailing address) that respondents provided to match these records with other cases in the sample. There were 704 additional completed interviews to this open access survey that could not be matched with the sample with available contact information. NORC incorporated these additional responses in the weighting process, with details of the weighting methodology described in the following section.

After data collection, completed cases from the supplemental sample that provided address information were also cross-referenced with the main sample and if there were no duplication, those cases were included with the main sample.

Organization List Frame

In addition to utilizing databases available from the study's sponsoring organizations, the study team contacted a wide variety of organizations in the community and asked them to share their membership lists for inclusion in the study. Forty-seven organizations participated representing a broad cross-section of the community, including synagogues, day schools, early childhood centers, cultural centers, community groups, social service agencies, and youth organizations.

There were 47,408 households on the organization list frame with mailing addresses available that were eligible for the main sample. An additional 4,090 records had email addresses available but no mailing addresses. These households were eligible for the supplemental email sample, but not the main sample.

Address-Based Frame

To assure broad coverage of the Jewish community across the Greater Miami area, the study additionally conducted address-based sampling (ABS) from the aforementioned U.S. Postal Service CDSF. All addresses from the organization list frame were removed from the address-based frame. Households on the address-based frame were designated as either likely Jewish or not based on applying a predictive model with available vendor data for a first-stage sample, and different strata were formed for households predicted and not predicted as likely Jewish.[1] Details of the methodology are described in the following section on sample design.

A stratified sample design was employed for both portions of the frame to ensure representation of different population subgroups, to increase the likelihood of reaching Jewish households, and to assure broad coverage of the Greater Miami area Jewish community.

Organization List Sample Design

The organization list frame grouped lists and records within lists into three strata: those with both mailing address and email, those with just a mailing address, and those with just an email.

Cases with just an address were further stratified by sub-region to ensure adequate representation across study area. Cases with email were not further stratified at all.

Table A1 shows stratum sizes and number of cases sampled by stratum group within the organization list frame. The stratum sizes reflect the number of households with mailing addresses available who were eligible for the main sample, as well as cases with only mailing address available, and cases with only email available (who were then eligible for the supplemental sample). All available cases were sampled with certainty for cases in the main sample with both mailing and email address, and for cases in the supplemental sample. Cases in the main sample with only mailing address were sampled at a lower rate.

[a]To be eligible for the main sample, households had to have a valid Greater Miami area address on the sample frame.
[b]Supplemental sample cases were selected among cases with email addresses but no mailing addresses available from the sampling frame.

Address-Based Sample Design

Address-based sampling[2] was conducted using a stratified sample design employed from the CDSF portion of the frame. The stratification was carried out at two levels.

- Level 1: The first stratification level was based on: (1) classifying census block groups by the estimated prevalence of Jewish households into high, medium, and low density of Jewish households; and (2) employing a predictive model to determine households' likelihood of having a Jewish adult.

  The study team developed a measure related to Jewish density at the census block group-level. The study team chose census block groups as a small geographic unit for this as block groups are typically designed by the U.S. Census Bureau to have between 600 and 3,000 residents on average. Block groups were ranked by the percentage of households in the block group on the de-duplicated organization list frame. Then they were grouped into three categories of likely Jewish density: high, medium, and low.

  Households were then stratified based on classification from a predictive model as likely Jewish or not. For the address-based portion of the sample, NORC selected a first-stage sample of records from the CDSF stratified by the block group measure of Jewish density from among high and medium Jewish density block groups. Households were matched with a large set of variables available from a vendor, as well as with block group-level data from the 2021 U.S. Census Bureau Planning Database.[3] The team then used gradient boosted machines[4] to estimate for each household the likelihood of having at least one Jewish adult using more than 1,200 variables across the data sources. Adults in each household were scored according to likelihood of being a Jewish household, and those above a cutoff were eligible for the predictive model stratum. Among 418,278 households selected for the first-stage sample, 13,442 were predicted as likely Jewish. Other households were stratified as "Remainder ABS."

  The result was five level 1 groups: High-Density Predicted Model, Medium-Density Predicted model, High-Density Remainder ABS, Medium-Density Remainder ABS, and Low-Density Remainder ABS.

- Level 2 (Demo): Next, the High-Density Remainder ABS and Medium-Density Remainder ABS groups were further stratified by the vendor data flags used to reach priority groups. These were: Renter household, High-Wealth household, Young Adult household, Israeli household, Hispanic household, and All Other households.

Due to the low incidence of the target population in medium/low density strata not predicted as likely Jewish, a large sample was required in those strata. Email addresses from a vendor were appended to the sample and a cost-effective approach to contact this sample using email solicitations only was used. Out of 557,781 ABS medium/low density sampled cases, about 67.9% (378,767) of them were appended with an email address. Of these cases, 75 cases screened in and completed the survey.

Systematic sampling was used to draw an evenly distributed sample across the Greater Miami area within the combination of classification of predicted as likely Jewish or not, block group Jewish density classification, demographic classification, and sub-region.

Table A2 presents details of the sample design from the address-based frame.

Survey Instrument and Data Collection

The survey instrument was designed in collaboration with the sponsoring organizations and informed by the input of community members. The questions were crafted to minimize potential bias and any burden on respondents. Where possible, questions, language, and definitions were adopted from previously published Jewish community survey questionnaires to support comparability of estimates to other communities, while adapting many questions for the content needs for the Greater Miami area community.

The survey was designed and programmed for the web mode. Mail and email solicitations were sent inviting sampled cases to complete the survey online with an option to call NORC to complete an interview over the telephone. Phone prompting was also conducted for a subset of the list cases from March through May to encourage completion of the survey. Ultimately, 187 interviews were conducted on the phone from outbound dialing, 17 interviews were conducted on the phone from respondents calling in, and 544 interviews were conducted on the web after NORC had called the sample case to initiate.

The questionnaire was divided into two parts, a screener to determine eligibility for the survey and the survey itself for all respondents who screened in. The screener section was asked of all respondents to determine eligibility. Any household in the sample was considered eligible if it contained at least one adult aged 18 or older who lived in Greater Miami area for at least part of the year and considered himself or herself to be Jewish.

The survey could be completed over web or phone in either English or Spanish and typically took 21 to 38 minutes to complete with a median of 28 minutes.

Sample Recruitment

Data collection ran from February 5, 2024, to June 14, 2024. Main sample members were contacted using differing materials based upon whether they were sampled from the organization list frame or the address-based frame.

The organization list sample was contacted using materials branded as "Miami-Dade Jewish Community Study." As these households were affiliated with Greater Miami area Jewish organizations, the study team identified the purpose of the study as a Jewish community study sponsored by Miami area Jewish organizations to encourage participation. Sampled cases with email addresses were first sent an initial email invitation with an access code to take the survey on the web. Then, approximately ten days later reminder emails were sent. After this second email round, main sample cases were sent an invitation letter. Throughout the data collection period, reminder emails were sent approximately every week until the end of the study period, varying language to recruit respondents. Additionally, from March through May telephone prompting was conducted for ABS cases since that group had a lower response rate.

Fifty percent of the address-based sample was contacted using materials branded as "Miami-Dade Speaks! Community Study" that discussed surveying sample members about issues facing Miami area residents. The remaining 50% received the "Miami-Dade Jewish Community Study" materials. This material distribution helped ensure that accurate Jewish incidence rates could be estimated from the data while increasing the number of completed surveys. The initial invitation letter included a link and access code for taking the survey on the web and no postcard reminder was sent to the address-based sample group.

The supplemental sample from the organization list frame received similar emails to the main list sample but were not mailed letters and did not receive phone call reminders. To optimize response from all community members, especially from harder-to-reach portions of the community, the contact information for supplemental sample case respondents were compared to that of main sample respondents. Supplemental cases that had unique contact information were considered as part of the main sample for weighting and estimation purposes.

In addition, an open access survey link was made available to members of the community so that anyone in the community with the survey link could complete the study. The open access effort resulted in 704 unique completed eligible surveys after deduplication with the full sample to ensure uniqueness across the completed cases.

Survey Weighting

Survey weights were developed to support estimation. The survey weighting process incorporated the following steps for household-level weights:
1. Base weights that reflect the sample design and probabilities of selection;
2. Adjustment for resolution of address and for nonresponse to the screener;
3. Raking adjustments to control totals that included demographic data on the full population from the American Community Survey and demographic estimates on the Jewish by religion population from Brandeis University's American Jewish Population Project; and data on synagogue membership, day school enrollment, Jewish part-time school enrollment, Jewish preschool enrollment, donations to Jewish Federation of Miami, JCC membership, and PJ Library subscriptions;
4. Adjustment for nonresponse to the main interview among screened in households;
5. Trimming and final raking to reduce the influence of large survey weights on estimates and align the final weights with data on the Greater Miami area Jewish community.

The above process produced the final household-level weight for estimates of all Jewish households in Greater Miami area. Weights for estimates of all adults living in these households and for all Jewish adults, intended for analyses of characteristics of the specific adults in each household responding to the survey, were produced by applying an additional raking process. This raking was designed so that estimates based on either household-level weights or respondent-level weights are closely aligned for key estimates.

The weighting process was conducted twice, once for the main sample alone and once for the full sample (combined main and supplemental samples). Thus, six survey weights were developed in total, with two sets of the three survey weights.

The following describes the details of each step of the weighting process.

Household-Level Base Weight

The base weight was calculated to adjust for the probability of being included in the sample. Specifically, for household i, the base weight was calculated as:

$$w_{1i} = \frac{1}{\pi_i},$$

where π_i is the probability of a household being selected for the sample, which for the main sample was calculated as the fraction of households sampled in the stratum to the total number of households in the stratum.

There were two versions of the base weights calculated for the main and full samples reflecting the differences in eligibility and sampling probabilities. To be eligible for the main sample, a mailing address must be available for the household. For remaining sample without a mailing address, the supplemental email sample, an email address must be available.

The main sample base weight was determined based on the number of households with mailing addresses available in the stratum. Households with a mailing address were eligible for the main sample, while households with only an email address were initially available for the supplemental sample, although they could switch to the main sample if the contact information deduplication criteria were satisfied. The full sample base weight was calculated in the following way: (1) If a mailing address was available at the time of sampling the full sample base weight was set equal to the main sample base weight. (2) If a household had only an email address available at the time of sampling, the full sample base weight was set to exactly 1 due to all such cases being selected with certainty for the supplemental sample. In both the main and full sample, open access cases were also given a base weight of 1 so that each case represents one household.

Adjustment for Resolution of Address and Screener Nonresponse

Not all households sampled are occupied housing units, making them ineligible for the screener. In addition, some sampled households were confirmed to live outside the Greater Miami area and therefore are also not eligible for the screener. Further, there was nonresponse among households eligible to complete the screener. The weighting procedure conducted an adjustment for resolution of the address and screener nonresponse in one step.

This adjustment was conducted within cells defined by the sampling strata, the availability of an email address, and the messaging type ("Jewish" or "Miami Speaks"). For list cases, it was also defined by whether or not the list the sample member was on was comprised of mostly highly engaged Jewish community members. The sampling strata reflect different data sources for the frame and geographic areas within the Greater Miami area. These aspects led the strata to capture meaningful differences in survey eligibility and participation among the sample. In addition, availability of an email address was highly predictive of screener response and there was potential for the characteristics of the grouped lists to have a similar effect.

For the full sample weighting process, the adjustment cells were formed in the same way as the main sample process, based on sampling strata, presence of an email address, the messaging type ("Jewish" or "Miami Speaks"), and list engagement characteristics. Separate groups of strata were formed for the main and supplemental samples. Note, the supplemental sample had different levels of eligibility and cooperation with the survey than the main sample due to the fact that email was the only contact information on file and the email-only recruitment.

Specifically, the resulting weight at this stage for household h in adjustment cell C was calculated as:

where I_j^{SC} is a 1/0 indicator for whether a household completed the screener, I_j^{KE} is an indicator for whether a household has known eligibility but did not complete the screener, I_j^{UE} indicates that the household's eligibility for the screener is unknown, and I_j^{KI} indicates that the household is known to be ineligible for the screener.

Generalized Raking to Population Totals

The weights for all households that completed the screener were then adjusted to match population estimates from external data sources using a generalized raking procedure. As the external estimates included both household-level and person-level information for adults 18 and older and because person-level information was reflected in the household-level dataset as count variables, a generalized raking procedure was implemented that incorporated both binary household-level and count person-level variables.[5] The following describes the population estimates used for adjustment in the raking procedure.

American Community Survey estimates on the overall 18+ population in the Greater Miami area were used regarding:
- Age (18-34, 35-54, 55-64, 65 and older);
- Education for the aged 25 and older population (college graduates, not college graduates);
- Sex (male, female);
- Race/ethnicity (White non-Hispanic, Other including Hispanic);
- Geographic regions (Central, North Dade, South Dade, Beaches).

In addition, American Jewish Population Project estimates on the overall 18+ Jewish by religion population in the area were used regarding:
- The total number of Jewish adults
- Geographic regions (Central, North Dade, South Dade, Beaches).

See Appendix C for more information on the development of the American Jewish Population Project estimates.

Further, information available for the Greater Miami area Jewish community was used in raking adjustments regarding:
- The number of households with dues-paying synagogue memberships in synagogues of specific denominations;
- The number of Jewish household memberships of the JCC;
- The number of children enrolled in Jewish preschool, Jewish day school, and Jewish part-time school;
- The number of households with subscriptions to PJ Library;
- The number of households donating to the Jewish Federation of Miami;

- An estimate of the number of households with at least one Jewish adult based on w_{2i}.

The resulting weight was w_{3i}.

Adjustment for Interview Nonresponse

The data were subsetted to only Jewish households eligible for the main interview. Not all households eligible for the main interview proceeded to complete it. Similar to the adjustment for screener response, cells were formed to adjust the weights for interview nonresponse based on the sample strata and, for the list sample, the engagement characteristics of the list. Note that ABS strata were collapsed into one group when forming the adjustment cells.

Specifically, the resulting weight at this stage for household h in adjustment cell C was calculated as:

$$w_{4i} = w_{3i} \left(\frac{\sum_{j \in C} w_{3j}\left[I_j^{IC} + I_j^{IN}\right]}{\sum_{j \in C} w_{3j} I_j^{IC}} \right),$$

where I_j^{IC} is a 1/0 indicator for whether a household completed the interview, I_j^{IN} is an indicator for whether a household was an interview incomplete that was determined eligible for the main interview.

Trimming and Final Raking for Household-Level Weight

To reduce the influence of observations with large weights on study estimates and variance, weights were trimmed. The trimming reallocated the weights so the sum of the weights among all interview completes was the same before and after trimming.

Because weight trimming causes estimates to deviate from known information on the Greater Miami area Jewish population, trimming and raking steps were conducted iteratively to keep estimates aligned. Initial generalized raking steps at this stage incorporated the following data:
- Estimates from AJPP
  - The number of Jewish by religion adults
  - The proportion of Jewish by religion adults who are 18-24 years of age
  - The proportion of Jewish of no and multiple religion adults who are 18-34 and 55-64 years of age
  - Total non-Jewish adults residing in Jewish households
  - Total non-Jewish children residing in Jewish households
  - The proportion of households without a married couple
  - The proportion of Jewish adults with a college degree
  - The proportion of Jewish by religion adults in each of the four geographical areas, (Central, North Dade, South Dade, Beaches)

- A series of unbiased survey estimates using the preliminary household survey weights calculated based on w_{3i}, including estimates of
  - Total Jewish of no and multiple religion adults

- o Total children residing in Jewish households
- o The proportion of married/partnered households with one Jewish and one non-Jewish partner

- The original estimates used in the calculation of w_{3i} including
  - o The number of synagogue members by synagogue denomination
  - o The number of JCC members
  - o Enrollment in Jewish preschool, Jewish day school, and Jewish part-time school
  - o The number of households with subscriptions to PJ Library
  - o The number of households donating to Jewish Federation of Miami

Through the iteration, some AJPP estimates were progressively removed from the raking process to remove undue influence on the final resulting weight, $w_{HH,i}$.

Survey Weights for Analyses of Responding Adults

For each of the main and full samples, two additional survey weights were developed for analyses of characteristics of the adults responding to the survey within the household rather than the household in general. One weight was designed to support estimates regarding all adults living in Jewish households, and the second weight supports estimates regarding all Jewish adults. Multiple raking dimensions were incorporated to align estimates with those based on the household-level weights, including:
- For all responding adults, estimates based on the household-level weights regarding the number of adults in Jewish households who are either Jewish by religion, Jewish of no religion, Jewish of multiple religions, or non-Jewish;
- For all Jewish responding adults, estimates based on the household-level weights regarding:
  - o Dues-paying synagogue membership by denomination (Chabad, Conservative, Reform, Orthodox, and Other);
  - o Enrollment of children in Jewish day school, Jewish part-time school, and Jewish preschool;
  - o Donations to the Jewish Federation of Miami;
  - o PJ Library subscriptions;
  - o Age group (25-34, 35-64, 65 and older);
  - o Educational background (college graduate or not);
  - o Denomination (Conservative, Reform, Orthodox, Reconstructionist);
  - o The number of adults not married, married to a Jewish adult, or married to a non-Jewish adult;
  - o Sex (male and female);
  - o The number of adults living in single-person households

After this raking step, weight trimming was conducted to avoid the influence of observations with large survey weights on survey estimates that use the weights for responding adults.

The resulting weight $w_{r,i}$ is the respondent-level weight to support estimates of adults in Jewish households when analyzing responding adults only.

Setting $w_{r,i}$ to 0 for non-Jewish responding adults yields $w_{rJ,i}$, the respondent-level weight to support estimates of all Jewish adults when analyzing responding adults only.

Response Rate and Margin of Error

Table A3 summarizes data collection results based on stratum assignments at the time of sampling. Results are presented for the overall main and full samples, and then separately for the combined organization list strata, predictive model strata, ABS remainder strata, and supplemental email sample. The AAPOR Response Rate 3 (RR3) is also presented unweighted, weighted by the main sample base weight, and weighted by the full sample base weight.

For the main sample after incorporation of 31 unique supplemental sample cases and 693 open-access cases, there were 2,660 completed interviews among 3,658 who completed the screener and lived in the Greater Miami area. Completed interviews were defined as completing all questions on the roster of adults and children in the household and key questions in the residency section. The final response rate was 1.3% unweighted and 0.9% weighted. Note that the response rate was higher excluding the sample who received email only (6.5% unweighted and 7.1% weighted). When using the final household-level weight to analyze the main sample for all completed interviews the margin of error is +/- 4.7%.

For the full sample that included the supplemental email sample and the open access sample, there were 2,686 completed surveys among 3,714 households who completed the screener and live in the Greater Miami area. The final response rate was 1.5% unweighted and 1.0% weighted. When using the final household-level weight to analyze the full sample for all completed interviews the margin of error is +/- 4.7%.

Limitations

The study team made every effort to field a representative sample of the Greater Miami area Jewish population to assure the quality of estimates, including developing a comprehensive sampling frame, collecting survey data by web and telephone, and conducting nonresponse follow-up. Nonetheless, there are limitations. Certain subgroups of the area Jewish population may be less likely to respond to the survey than others. Statistical adjustments used in the survey weighting process commonly assume that after adjusting for certain variables, the characteristics of responding and nonresponding households are similar. However, this assumption may not always hold, which may lead to bias for estimates. In addition, changes in the population occurring between sample frame development and the data collection period may not be fully reflected in estimates. Because of this, newcomers to the community may be underestimated.

APPENDIX B. ANALYSIS

All analyses were completed using statistical software Stata, version 18. Unless otherwise noted, all analyses were restricted to Jewish households (in which at least one adult was Jewish) as well as individual Jewish adults and Jewish children who were specifically identified by respondents as being Jewish. Analyses of characteristics of the entire population were based only on the primary sample with appropriate weights applied. All analyses of subgroups or subsets of the population were conducted using the full sample with appropriate weights applied.

Precise population estimates

Population numbers presented in the report were rounded so as to avoid overprecision – that is, the misleading implication that our estimates are correct down to the single digit. As well, it is important to note that these numbers are estimates, with a 95% level of confidence that the true value lies between the lower and upper bound. The smaller the sample size for a given estimate, the wider the confidence interval. As shown below, the confidence intervals for the subregions are much wider than for the overall estimates.

The precise population estimates with 95% confidence intervals are shown in Table B1, B2, and B3.. For example, the best estimate of the total Jewish population is 130,090 people. Given the size of the sample and possible sampling and non-response error, we can be 95% confident that the true value lies somewhere between 116,692 people to 143,489 people.

Table B1. Population estimates with confidence intervals

	Estimate	Lower bound	Upper bound

Qualitative Coding

The survey included a set of open-ended questions that supported write-in responses rather than multiple choice. Responses were coded by CMJS/SSRI staff and student research assistants, with at least two researchers coding each question.

Coders were trained to ensure intercoder reliability, stability, and accuracy. Their worked was reviewed on an ongoing basis for quality control. Difficult cases were marked for review by supervisors.

Coding was conducted both deductively and inductively. For each question, coders were given a set of categories to look for in the responses; these categories were based on those used for similar questions from previous studies. However, coders were also instructed to watch for emerging patterns. When a coder believed that a new pattern of responses existed within the data, they reviewed their findings with a supervisor who decided whether the new pattern warranted a new code. When a new code was created, the coders reviewed previously coded entries to check whether the new code would apply to them.

Index of Jewish Engagement

Latent Class Analysis (LCA) is a method (Henry & Lazarsfeld, 1968) for uncovering the latent dimensions that explain the associations between categorical variables. It is a statistical method that is designed to identify latent variables. Latent variables are hypothesized variables of interest that cannot be measured directly in a dataset but are measured indirectly through variables that can be included (observed or manifest variables). As an illustration, "Jewish engagement" cannot be measured directly on a survey, but it is the latent variable of interest for the present study (Aronson et al., 2018).

Unlike factor analysis, a more frequently utilized method of cluster analysis, the goal of LCA is to identify classifications of people rather than groups of variables or characteristics. The latent variable for LCA is a categorical variable representing multiple classes or types of people. Each individual is assumed to be a member of only one class. The LCA method assigns, for each case in the dataset, a probability that the case is a member of each class. This assignment is based on the pattern of responses to the observed variables used in the analysis. An excellent explanation of these techniques can be found at http://nap.edu/18623 (Institute of Medicine 2014). The present study uses a modern version of LCA, a Stata plugin, to estimate the latent classes (Lanza et al., 2015).

Latent class analysis works with the patterns and attempts to group them in such a way that within each group, called a class, there is no association between the items. The latent class is called latent because, although it is actually not in the variable set, it accounts for the associations between the manifest variables in the same way that a third variable can account for the observed association between two variables. In the classic example of a nonsensical statement, "The more firemen at a fire, the greater the damage," the association is accounted for by a third variable—the size of the fire. The greater the fire, the more firemen; the greater the fire, the more damage. In technical terms, this is called "local independence," which is also an assumption of factor analysis. The goal of completely accounting for the associations is rarely met, in part because there are so many empty cells, as well as the messiness of real data. Rather, the method tries to find through iterative fitting the right number of classes and relationship between them that minimizes the discrepancy between a perfect fit and the actual data.

To develop an index of Jewish engagement for the present report, 20 items were used to represent the range of Jewish behaviors (Table B.1.) These items were selected to include ritual, communal, and cultural behaviors, as well as public and private behaviors. In all cases when items had more than two possible response levels, responses were dichotomized with the cutoff based on the distribution of responses in the original variable. After conducting the latent class analysis, a four-class solution was identified.

Latent Class Analysis was conducted in Stata version 18 using a user-developed LCA Stata Plugin developed by the Methodology Center at Penn State (Lanza et al., 2015). The five-class solution was selected as the point where both the number of cases per class was sufficient and where the goodness-of-fit measures start to "level off," that is, improvement by adding more classes begin to decline. In addition, the four-class solution made intuitive sense. As in factor analysis, the number of classes, like the number of factors, is partly a matter of theory and intuition and the labels for the classes and factors are given by the analyst and are not in the data themselves. In addition to various indexes of fit, the output of the Stata program among other matters shows the size of the classes, the probability that a particular indicator would be endorsed by a member of a particular class, and the limits of confidence for the various parameters. The output is voluminous and not presented in this report. As is the case with factor analysis, the names of the classes were developed by researchers to characterize the distinguishing behaviors of each class.

Table B.4 shows the conditional response probabilities for each behavior in the LCA analysis with the four-class solution. The first row of the table shows the probability of a random respondent being categorized in each of the five classes. The remaining rows show the conditional response probability of each behavior: the probability that a randomly selected member of a class will exhibit the given behavior. For example, for those in the class we called "Occasional," the estimated probability of attending a seder was 42% as compared with 100% for those labelled "Ritual."

NOTE: This table should not be confused with Table 3.9 in the main report, which shows weighted proportions of class membership and of each behavior within the dataset, rather than conditional probabilities as estimated by the LCA algorithm.

APPENDIX C. AJPP POPULATION ESTIMATE

Developing the Population Estimate through Data Synthesis

Since 2005, the American Jewish Population Project (AJPP) at the Steinhardt Social Research Institute (SSRI) has identified and collected hundreds of nationally representative surveys of the US population to produce estimates of the Jewish population in the United States, its states, metropolitan areas, and counties (or groups of counties). These estimates provide an independent, external reference for the basic demographic profile of the Jewish population. This population profile serves as a point of reference for the community as a whole and for those who conduct targeted surveys of the population and have no frame of reference for evaluating the representativeness of their survey sample.

Bayesian multilevel regression with post-stratification (BMRP) is used to generate the estimates of the adult Jewish population. The BMRP framework was developed by Park, Gelman, and Bafumi (2004)[6] and described in detail in Gelman and Hill (2007)[7]. Details of the methods are reported elsewhere.[8]

The data synthesis method demonstrates how an auxiliary data source can be constructed to provide independent, census-like estimates of the size and characteristics of the adult Jewish by religion (JBR) population in the U.S. at the county level.[9] These estimates of the adult JBR population may then be used to generate new post-stratification weights. These new post-stratification weights are then applied to the targeted study of the Jewish population.

Summary of Data

The full sample of surveys in the AJPP dataset consists of data from surveys of nationally representative random samples of the adult population in the U.S. conducted between 1997 and 2022. The dataset includes surveys identified in major data repositories, such as the Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) and the American Religion Data Archive (ARDA), as well as in poll archives at the Roper Center, Gallup, and Pew Research Center. Surveys include Pew Political and social surveys, Gallup Daily Tracking poll, the Cooperative Congressional Election Study (CCES), and other surveys. The dataset includes more than 1,400 independent samples and a total combined sample size of more than 4.5 million respondents, of whom over 110,000 identify as Jewish by religion. Where a single survey included multiple sampling methods or frames (e.g., landline versus cellphone), each is treated as a separate independent sample, with unique identifiers to indicate series membership.[10] For surveys that included oversamples, only the representative portion of the samples were included in the analyses.

All of the surveys in the sample provide data on those who identify as Jewish by religion (JBR), which is the largest proportion of the Jewish population and therefore serves as the baseline group for generating population estimates. A smaller number of surveys include assessment of religious upbringing or parents' religious/ethnic identification, or non-religious Jewish identification (for instance, "Do you consider yourself Jewish?") in addition to current religious affiliation.[11]

A custom analysis was conducted to provide estimates of the adult Jewish population for the 2024 Miami-Dade Jewish Community Study. The analysis includes data from a subset of 177 national samples that were conducted between the years 2017 and 2022. The subset sample includes 7,594 respondents from South Florida, from which 2,143 were from ZIP Codes that correspond to the Miami-Dade Jewish Community Study target area (see description of the study target area below). In addition to religious identification, all of the surveys in the custom analysis include the following baseline demographic information for respondents: gender, race, educational attainment, age, and ZIP Code.

Modeling

The lowest level of geography available for analysis was the ZIP Code of the respondent. For the purpose of analysis, the ZIP Codes were converted to ZIP Code Tabulation Areas (ZCTAs). The Miami-Dade Jewish Community Study target area is comprised of 75 ZCTAs. There were too few observations within ZCTAs to reliably estimate single ZCTAs. ZCTAs were, therefore, clustered into five regions (ZCTA clusters) based on their proximity, population density, Jewish population incidence[12], and community regions of interest. To improve the Bayesian model estimation, three additional ZCTA cluster areas that represent other areas of South Florida—two of Palm Beach County and one of Broward County—were included in the model. In addition, for modeling purposes, the eight total ZCTA clusters were nested into three 'hyper-clusters' based on prior information of Jewish incidence. Estimates from the newest available 5-year American Community Study (ACS 2023) were used for post-stratification.

[10] Series identification is included in the dataset to be able to examine differences across surveys that can be accounted for by survey series.
[11] Currently there are too few surveys of representative samples of all U.S. adults that include alternative methods of Jewish identification. Thus, the present analyses focus on the JBR population only.
[12] Tighe, E., et al. 2021. AJPP Technical Report 2020: ZIP Code-Based Jewish Population Estimates. American Jewish Population Project. https://ajpp.brandeis.edu/documents/2020/AJPPTechnicalReport2020.pdf. See chapter 5 for additional information on ZIP Code clusters.

The model includes seven categories of age (18-24; 25-34; 35-44; 45-54; 55-64; 65-74; 75+), three categories of race and ethnicity (white non-Hispanic; Hispanic; other non-Hispanic), two categories of sex (Male / Female), and two categories of educational attainment (Non-College / College).

The model is displayed below, where the outcome variable, y_i, represents the Jewish identification of the respondent (yes/no), for $i = 1, \ldots,$ total number of respondents.

$$\Pr(y_i = 1) = logit^{-1}(\beta_0 + \alpha_{j[i]}^{edu} + \alpha_{k[i]}^{race-ethn} + \alpha_{l[i]}^{age} + \alpha_{m[i]}^{sex} + \alpha_{l,j[i]}^{age6.edu} + \alpha_{n[i]}^{geo} + \gamma_{o[n]}^{hclust})$$

The model was fit using the Bayesian software Stan (Stan Development Team, 2020) in R using the rstan package [13].

Jewish Population Estimates

Results from the model provide overall population estimates as well as estimates of the distribution of Jewish adults by demographic characteristics and the five Miami-Dade regions. The overall estimate of the adult population who identify as Jewish by religion in the Miami-Dade target area is 73,600 (CI: 61,500 – 84,900) corresponding to 3.5% (CI: 3.0% - 4.1%) of the adult population in the same area. The distributions within the adult Jewish population varied by age, education, gender, race/ethnicity, and geography. Table C.1 presents this information.

APPENDIX E. CODEBOOK

This document shows the exact text of each survey question, the response options, and the weighted and unweighted responses. Before each question is the variable name that corresponds to the public use dataset.

The screener section shows all responses unweighted. Screened-out cases are not included in the dataset and do not have survey weights.

Most weighted responses use the respondent weight. Where the "|^|" symbol appears after a variable name, the weighted responses are estimated using household weights. See public use dataset documentation for details about survey weights.

Dear [P_NAME],

 Your voice matters, now more than ever. From the pandemic, to the conflict in Israel, to rising antisemitism, the needs and concerns of members of the Jewish community have changed dramatically over the past few years. Amid these challenges, Miami-Dade Jewish organizations need information from community members to do the important work of planning for the future. We are reaching out to a large and diverse cross section of households for this study to ensure that all community members are represented. Make sure your views are included by taking part in the Miami-Dade Jewish Community Study.
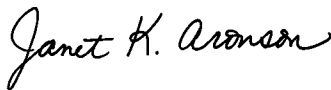

The study is sponsored by the Greater Miami Jewish Federation with the support of local Jewish agencies, schools and synagogues. The Cohen Center at Brandeis University is partnering with NORC at the University of Chicago, an independent research institution, to conduct this study.

Any information you provide is completely confidential. Your individual responses will not be shared outside of the research team at the Cohen Center and NORC, and you will not be asked to donate money during the survey or as a result of your participation. Only one adult in your household (age 18 or older) should complete the survey on behalf of all household members. Participation in this survey is by invitation only; please do not share or forward this survey outside of your household.

It's easy to complete the survey!
1. Visit http://MiamiJewishStudy.norc.org or call 877-204-4658 2. Enter your survey access code: [P_PIN] 3. Complete the 30-minute survey – if you need to step away,	QR code placeholder
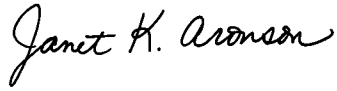

Your participation is important. If you have questions, please email MiamiJewishStudy@norc.org or call 877-204-4658. You can read more about the study at http://MiamiJewishStudy.norc.org, where you can also start the survey. If you would like to speak with the Greater Miami Jewish Federation, visit https://jewishmiami.org/communitystudy, call 305-576-4000, or email communitystudy@gmjf.org.

Thank you for taking part in this important research and completing the survey as soon as possible.
