OUR VISION

Mishkan Miami is creating a seamless community of care, in which agencies, synagogues and individuals work together for those who need it most. Mishkan Miami builds upon Federation’s mission that the Jewish community can provide support through economic and emotional assistance when needed. At the same time, we can provide spiritual support to all, recognizing that each person has been endowed with a transcendent spirit. Mishkan Miami sees a community that engages each member in both Refuat HaNefesh and Refuat HaGuf – healing of body and spirit.

OUR MISSION

COMPASSION Ḥemla | CARE Chesed | CONNECTION Chibur

Mishkan Miami: The Jewish Connection for Spiritual Support, a program of the Greater Miami Jewish Federation, helps to build connection to community and our sacred Jewish heritage. A compassionate, caring and connecting presence can help provide the resilience, courage and support needed to face life’s challenges. These three concepts are at the foundation of Jewish spiritual care. When an individual experiences loss or transition because of health, age or personal crisis, each of us has a Jewish obligation to one another. Mishkan Miami seeks to be a catalyst of change for local institutions, synagogues and volunteers through teaching and inspiring the values of Jewish spiritual care.

Rabbi Chama son of Rabbi Chanina also said: What is the meaning of the text: “You shall walk after the Lord your God?” (Deuteronomy 13:4) Is it possible for a human being to walk after the Divine presence? Has it not been said, “For the Lord your God is a devouring fire?” Rather, the meaning is to walk after the attributes of God: As God clothes the naked, for it is written, “And the Lord God made for Adam and for his wife coats of skin, and clothed them;” so should you also clothe the naked. As God visits the sick, for it is written: “And the Lord appeared unto him by the oaks of Mamre;” so should you also visit the sick. As God comforts mourners, for it is written: “And it came to pass after the death of Abraham, that God blessed Isaac, his son;” so should you also comfort mourners. As God buries the dead, for it is written: “And God buried him in the valley;” so should you also bury the dead.

Visiting the sick has no limits – even the great must visit the humble, even one hundred times a day.

OUR CHALLENGE

The Greater Miami Jewish Federation is our communal safety net. Wherever there is a Jew in need locally, in Israel or around the world, it is our personal responsibility to make sure they are safe, to ensure they have the means to support themselves and to provide access to critical services. However, Jewish community is more than institutions, buildings or programs. It is about each of us — our goals, sense of meaning, aspirations, dreams, stories, values. It is about sharing our joys and sorrows together.

In difficult times, our sense of being may be challenged. We may ask:

• Who am I now?
• What will happen to me?
• How do I speak to loved ones about what I need most now?
• How can I connect to my faith to give me support?

This is when we need community more than ever. Like a tent or tabernacle — a mishkan — our community should be where we can find a sense of place and, most importantly, HOME. Like Abraham and Sarah’s tent, we envision a community that is open to all. When we do this work in a Jewish context and utilize the spiritual resources of our past, we connect people to a larger community that transcends a specific time and place.

We believe our community needs more spiritual care providers, and spiritual care must be a central part of our community culture. Spiritual care is part of our Jewish responsibility to one another.

OUR MANDATE

Who is responsible for spiritual care in our communities? Our rabbis? Our synagogues? Our chaplains? Our Federation? The truth is, each of us can be a source of compassion, care and connection. We accomplish this through these three mandates:

SERVICE/Avodah
Mishkan Miami provides trained, board-certified chaplains for healthcare institutions and long-term care facilities throughout the community.

EDUCATION/Chinuch
Mishkan Miami convenes periodic conferences for healthcare professionals, mental health and social workers and for those dealing with aging populations.

COMMUNITY BUILDING/Kehillah
Mishkan Miami empowers and trains volunteers and synagogues to visit those in need throughout Miami-Dade County.

Jewish tradition affirms that visiting those who are ill, or in need, is not only a nice gesture, but it is a critical obligation for each Jew. Consider the following text:

Rabbi Helbo took ill. Rabbi Kahana proclaimed, “Rabbi Helbo is sick!” but no one came to visit. He rebuked the others as follows: “Did it not happen that one of Rabbi Akiva’s students became ill and none of the sages came to visit him?” Rabbi Akiva, however, came himself to visit, and because he swept and cleaned the room, he recovered. The student exclaimed, “Rabbi, you have indeed given me life!” Following this, Rabbi Akiva went to the academy and taught, “Whoever does not visit the sick is like a shedder of blood.”

How can we respond to Rabbi Akiva’s challenge to us? This informs Mishkan Miami’s collective mission.

A SPIRIT OF SUPPORT

I was going through a personal health crisis. The ground felt like it was collapsing below me. I met with a Mishkan Miami chaplain. We prayed together and she provided direction and encouragement to me. The time spent together provided me with the courage to face what I was going through. I do not know what I would have done without her.
- Jewish mother struggling with cancer

I reached out to Mishkan Miami after the death of my father. Many people, even my own children, told me that it was time to move on. I felt alone. I met a Mishkan Miami chaplain in a coffee shop, and he simply listened without judgment. It was the first time I could really express what my father meant to me. A year later, I hold this hour close to my heart.
- Bereaved single daughter

A Mishkan Miami chaplain ran a short Passover Seder service with my father while he was in rehab at a local hospital. I watched my father sing and smile, relishing in the song and joy in the room. I had no idea that this would be his last Jewish experience, as he died the next morning.
- Son of nursing home resident

A chaplain came to visit me during my stay at the hospital when I was suffering. I knew my life was approaching its final act. I asked myself, “Why me?” However, in the course of our conversation with the chaplain, I was surprised how many other feelings stirred as well. I realized the richness of my own life, and that for many years I was given the gift to wake up around those I loved, to enjoy a beautiful day, smell the flowers, enjoy a good meal, and live with a roof over my head and security. I felt overwhelmed by gratitude for the gifts I had been given. I was not happy with what was happening to me, but deep down I felt a sense of inner peace. Just like God had been good to me all those years, He will continue to protect and support me even now. I don’t know if I would have had that breakthrough about myself until the Mishkan Miami chaplain visited.
- Hospital patient

Mishkan Miami chaplains have trained in clinical settings and many have received board certification through Neshama: The Association for Jewish Chaplains. We strive for excellence in providing care to those who need it most. Every day, our chaplains visit people in hospitals. On Fridays, religious services are performed in more than 15 facilities benefiting hundreds of adults, many of whom suffer from dementia. The program also offers prayer cards, a CD of soothing music, reflection books, cemetery prayers, burial guides and bereavement brochures.

For many older adults, those with dementia, and those unaffiliated who are ill, our chaplains connect them to our sacred texts and traditions when they need it, and also to our community.
Each time I discuss my loss, I am helping myself face the reality of the death of my loved one. I need to feel your touch, your hugs. I need you just to be “with” me (and in my own time).

I need to know you believe in me and in my spiritual recovery, please visit JewishMiami.org/about/departments/chaplaincy

For the past several years, Mishkan Miami has trained volunteers from all religious and denominational backgrounds to come together and learn the art of spiritual care. Over the course of six months, our volunteers study and volunteer in hospitals, long-term care facilities, hospices, synagogue caring groups or through one-on-one visits. The program, called the Refuat HaNefesh Fellows or Jewish Spiritual Care Volunteer Fellowship, has transformed the lives of many individuals, as they use these skills in their visits and in their own lives.

Mishkan Miami hosts seminars for synagogue professionals and lay leaders and partners with local congregations to help them build their own caring communities.

Past professional seminars include:
- Resilience and Aging
- Jewish Views on the Afterlife: A Seminar for Rabbis
- Jewish Ethics at the End of Life
- Aging With Meaning: A Spiritual Journey
- Stories of Living: Shattering Stereotypes of Aging
- Meaningful Moments: Holding On While Letting Go
- Society, Aging & Our Responsibility: Ethical Decision-Making
MISHKAN MIAMI IS ABOUT YOU

Each of us seeks meaning and transcendence, especially during times of crisis. Our rituals, our traditions and our communities can provide hope to each of us. The Mishkan (tent or tabernacle) in our Jewish tradition was not only where the people gathered together in the desert, but where they went to encounter the Divine.

We are committed to providing that connection for those who feel they wander in their own personal deserts. Community can truly be sacred if we have that sacred intention.

We hope you will join us in bringing this vision to reality.
